OpenLearn | Free learning from The Open University

The Open University

Statement of participation

Vamshi krishna Kande

has completed the free course including any mandatory tests for:

Eating for the environment

This free 8-hour course explored the links between food, nutrition and environmental sustainability.

Issue date: 7 November 2023

www.open.edu/openlearn

This statement does not imply the award of credit points nor the conferment of a University Qualification.
This statement confirms that this free course and all mandatory tests were passed by the learner.

Please go to the course on OpenLearn for full details:
https://www.open.edu/openlearn/nature-environment/eating-the-environment/content-section-0

COURSE CODE: SDT306_1

OpenLearn | Free learning from The Open University

The Open University

Eating for the environment

https://www.open.edu/openlearn/nature-environment/eating-the-environment/content-section-0

Course summary

This free course, Eating for the environment, will explore the links between food, nutrition and environmental sustainability.

Learning outcomes

By completing this course, the learner should be able to:

- identify the diversity of ingredients on dinner plates from around the world
- list the ingredients of a dinner plate and place them on the taxonomic tree
- recognise traditional and cultural associations of food
- identify geographical origins of different foods and intellectual property rights over them
- explore the links between food choices and environmental sustainability.

Completed study

The learner has completed the following:

Section 1

Nutrition security

Section 2

Dietary choices and preferences

Section 3

'You are what you eat'

Section 4

Diversity on your dinner plate

Section 5

Food, culture and traditions

Section 6

Unconventional food

Section 7

Conclusion